

STATE STATUTES
CURRENT THROUGH SEPTEMBER 2019

Reasonable Efforts to Preserve or Reunify Families and Achieve Permanency for Children

To find statute information for a particular State, go to <https://www.childwelfare.gov/topics/systemwide/laws-policies/state/>.

"Reasonable efforts" refers to activities of State social services agencies that aim to provide the assistance and services needed to preserve and reunify families. The Federal title IV-E program requires States to make reasonable efforts to preserve and reunify families (i) prior to the placement of a child in foster care, to prevent or eliminate the need for removing the child from the child's home; and (ii) to make it possible for a child to safely return to the child's home.¹

Laws in all States, the District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands require that child welfare agencies make reasonable efforts to provide services that will help families remedy the conditions that brought the child and family into the child welfare system.

WHAT ARE REASONABLE EFFORTS?

The statutes in most States use a broad definition of what constitutes reasonable efforts. Generally, these efforts consist of accessible, available, and culturally appropriate services that are designed to improve the capacity of families to provide safe and stable homes for their children. Some commonly used terms associated with reasonable efforts include "family reunification," "family preservation," "family support," and "preventive services."² These services may include family therapy, parenting classes, treatment for substance use, respite care, parent support groups, and home visiting programs. Reasonable efforts also refer to the activities of caseworkers, including safety checks and home visits, that are performed on an ongoing basis to ensure that parents and other family members are participating in needed services and are making progress on case plan goals.

Examples of services that child welfare agencies can refer families to, to support the achievement of reasonable efforts, include the following:

- Child care
- Homemaker services
- Individual, group, and family counseling
- Health-care services
- Behavioral health evaluation and treatment
- Vocational counseling

² Services to be provided to the child and family are specified in a case plan. For more information on the case planning process, see Information Gateway's Case Planning for Families Involved With Child Welfare Agencies at <https://www.childwelfare.gov/topics/systemwide/laws-policies/statutes/caseplanning/>.

³ This began with the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980 (P.L. 96-272).

WHEN REASONABLE EFFORTS ARE REQUIRED

Federal law has long required State agencies to demonstrate they made reasonable efforts to provide assistance and services to prevent the removal of a child from his or her home and to make it possible for a child who has been placed in out-of-home care to be reunited with his or her family.³ "Reasonable efforts" are services and supports that are provided by the child welfare agency to assist a family in addressing the problems that place a child at risk of harm with the goal of preventing the need for substitute care or reducing the time the child must stay in an out-of-home placement.

Community-based family support services that promote the safety and well-being of children and families also may be offered. These services are designed to do the following:

- Increase family strength and stability
- Increase parent confidence and competence
- Afford children safe, stable, and supportive family environments
- Enhance child development

In many States, the statutes also require that, when a court determines that family reunification is not in the best interests of the child, efforts should be made to finalize another permanent placement for the child. Under the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 (ASFA), while reasonable efforts to preserve and reunify families are still required, the child's health and safety constitute the paramount concern in determining the extent to which reasonable efforts should be made.⁴

WHEN REASONABLE EFFORTS ARE NOT REQUIRED

Under the provisions of ASFA, reasonable efforts to preserve or reunify the family are not required when the court has determined any of the following circumstances apply:

- The parent subjected the child to aggravated circumstances as defined by State law. The definition of aggravated circumstances may include, but is not limited to, abandonment, torture, chronic abuse, and sexual abuse.
- The parent committed murder of another child of the parent.
- The parent committed voluntary manslaughter of another child of the parent.
- The parent aided or abetted, attempted, conspired, or solicited to commit such a murder or voluntary manslaughter.
- The parent committed a felony assault that resulted in serious bodily injury to the child or another child of the parent.
- The parental rights of the parent to a sibling of the child were terminated involuntarily.

In all States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, reasonable efforts are not required under these circumstances. In addition, several States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands provide one or more additional grounds for not making reasonable efforts to keep the child with his or her families. Examples of these circumstances include the following:

- The parent abandoned the child (36 States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands).⁵
- The parent abandoned an infant (11 States).⁶
- The parent was convicted of murder or voluntary manslaughter of the child's other parent (13 States and the Virgin Islands).⁷
- The parent was convicted of the crime of trafficking in persons (seven States and Puerto Rico).⁸
- The parent has sexually exploited or allowed the sexual exploitation of the child (seven States).⁹
- The child was removed from the home previously due to abuse or neglect and was removed again due to a subsequent incident of abuse or neglect (nine States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands).¹⁰
- The parent was convicted of a sexual offense that resulted in the child's conception (four States).¹¹

⁴ States must comply with the requirements outlined in ASFA as a condition for receiving certain Federal funds.

⁹ Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Florida, Maine, and Massachusetts

¹⁰ Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Florida, Nevada, New York, South Dakota, and Utah

¹¹ California, Connecticut, Nebraska, and Washington

- The parent is a registered sex offender or required to register on a sex offender registry (15 States and the District of Columbia).¹²
- The parent failed to comply with the terms of a reunification plan (10 States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands).¹³
- The parent has been incarcerated for a substantial term in relation to the child's age, and there is no suitable relative to care for the child (six States).¹⁴
- The parent suffers from a mental illness of such duration or severity that there is little likelihood that the parent will be able to resume care for the child within a reasonable time (eight States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands).¹⁵
- The parent suffers from chronic abuse of drugs or alcohol and has refused or failed treatment (nine States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands).¹⁶
- The parent has subjected the child to prenatal exposure to alcohol or a controlled substance (four States).¹⁷
- The parent indicated a lack of interest in reuniting with the child (three States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands).¹⁸

Other grounds found in one or two States include the following:

- The parent repeatedly withheld medical treatment or food from the child (Ohio).

- A putative father has failed to establish paternity of the child (Montana and Nevada).
- The parent allowed the child to be present where a clandestine illegal laboratory is operated (North Dakota and Utah).
- The parent is a convicted sexually violent predator (Washington).
- The parent has abducted the child or a sibling from his or her placement (California).

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ala. Code § 12-15-301(13)

'Reasonable efforts' are efforts made to preserve and reunify families prior to the placement of a child in foster care, to prevent or eliminate the need for removing the child from his or her home, and to make it possible for a child to return safely to his or her home. 'Reasonable efforts' also refers to efforts made to place the child in a timely manner in accordance with the permanency plan and to complete whatever steps are necessary to finalize the permanency placement of the child.

In determining the reasonable efforts to be made with respect to a child, and in making these reasonable efforts, the health and safety of the child shall be the paramount concern.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ala. Code § 12-15-312(b)

As used in this chapter, reasonable efforts refers to efforts made to preserve and reunify families prior to the placement of a child in foster care, to prevent or eliminate the need for removing the child from his or her home, and to make it possible for a child to return safely to his or her home. In determining the reasonable efforts to be made with respect to a child, and in making these reasonable efforts, the health and safety of the child shall be the paramount concern. If continuation of reasonable efforts is determined to be inconsistent with the permanency plan for the child, reasonable efforts shall be made to place the child in a timely manner in accordance with the permanency plan including, if appropriate, through an interstate placement, and to complete whatever steps are necessary to finalize a permanent plan for the child.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ala. Code § 12-15-312(c)

Reasonable efforts shall not be required to be made if the parental rights of the parent to a sibling have been involuntarily terminated or the parent has done any of the following:

- Subjected the child or a sibling to an aggravated circumstance that made the risk of abuse or neglect too high for the child to remain at home or return home. An aggravated circumstance includes, but is not limited to, aggravated stalking, abandonment, torture, or chronic abuse. An aggravated circumstance also may include any of the following:
 - A child is allowed to use alcohol or illegal drugs to the point of abuse, neglect, or substantial risk of harm.
 - Substance misuse or abuse, or both, by a parent interferes with the ability to keep the child safe, and the parent refuses to participate in or complete treatment or treatment has been unsuccessful.
 - A parent demonstrates extreme disinterest in the child by either not complying with a case plan for more than 6 months or repeatedly leaving the child with someone who is unwilling or incapable of providing care, and the parent does not return for the child as promised.
 - An infant or young child has been abandoned, the identity of the child is unknown, and the parent is unknown or unable to be located after a diligent search.
 - The parent has an emotional or mental condition, and there is clearly no treatment that can improve or strengthen the condition enough to allow the child to remain at home safely or to return home safely.
 - The parent is incarcerated, and the child is deprived of a safe, stable, and permanent parent-child relationship.

- Committed murder or manslaughter of another child or the child's other parent
- Been convicted of first-degree rape, first-degree sodomy, or incest
- Aided, abetted, attempted, conspired, or solicited to commit murder or manslaughter of another child or the child's other parent
- Committed a felony assault that resulted in serious bodily injury to the child, another child, or the child's other parent

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Alaska Stat. § 47.10.086

The responsibilities of the Department of Health and Social Services include the duty to do the following:

- Identify family support services that will assist the parent or guardian in remedying the conduct or conditions in the home that made the child a child in need of aid
- Actively offer the parent or guardian and refer the parent or guardian to those services
- Distribute to the parent or guardian information on community-based family support services whenever community-based services are available and desired by the parent or guardian, including information about the use of a power of attorney to select an individual to care for the child temporarily
- Document its actions

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Alaska Stat. § 47.10.086

The department shall make timely efforts to provide family support services to the child and parents that are designed to prevent out-of-home placement of the child or to enable the safe return of the child to the family home, when appropriate.

If the child cannot be returned home safely, the department shall make reasonable efforts to place the child in a timely manner in accordance with the permanency plan and complete whatever steps are necessary to finalize the permanent placement of the child.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Alaska Stat. § 47.10.086

The court may determine that reasonable efforts are not required if the court has found by clear and convincing evidence that any of the following apply:

- The parent has subjected the child to circumstances that pose a substantial risk of harm, including abandonment, sexual abuse, torture, chronic mental injury, or chronic physical harm.
- The parent has committed or attempted to commit murder of the other parent of the child or has committed felony assault that results in serious physical injury.
- The parent has failed to participate in family support services during the preceding 12 months.
- The department cannot identify and locate the parent.
- The parent has a mental illness and will be unable to care for the child in the foreseeable future.
- The parent has a previous conviction for a crime involving a child and, after the conviction, the child was returned to the parent and later removed because of an additional substantiated report of physical or sexual abuse.

- A child has suffered substantial physical harm as the result of abuse or neglect by the parent or by a person known to the parent, and the parent knew or reasonably should have known that the person was abusing the child.
- Rights to another child have been previously terminated, and conditions in the home have not been remedied.
- The parent is incarcerated for a substantial period of time during the child's minority.

The department is not required to make reasonable efforts to return the child to his or her family home if the department took emergency custody of an infant under § 47.10.142 after the infant was abandoned safely within the meaning of § 47.10.013(c).

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Rev. Stat. §§ 8-801; 8-891

'In-home intervention' means a program of services provided pursuant to § 8-891 while the child is still in the custody of the parent, guardian, or custodian.

After a dependency petition is filed, the court may order in-home intervention if all the following are true:

- The child has not been removed from the home.
- In-home intervention appears likely to resolve the risk issues described below.
- The parent, guardian, or custodian agrees to a case plan and participation in services.
- One of the following conditions exists:
 - The child is at risk of harm due to the inability or unwillingness of the parent, guardian, or custodian to provide food, clothing, shelter, or medical care.
 - The parent, guardian, or custodian is unable to provide proper care, control, and supervision of the child.

The in-home intervention order may include a training or treatment plan for the parent, guardian, or custodian and the child. The in-home intervention shall include a specific time for completion that shall not exceed 1 year without review and approval by the court.

The term 'protective services' is defined as a specialized child welfare program that is administered by the department to investigate allegations and seek to prevent, intervene in, and treat abuse and neglect to promote the well-being of the child in a permanent home and to coordinate services to strengthen the family.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Rev. Stat. § 8-846

If the child has been removed from the home, the court shall order the Department of Child Safety to make reasonable efforts to provide services to the child and the child's family.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Rev. Stat. § 8-846

Reunification services are not required when one or more of the following aggravating circumstances exist:

- A diligent search has failed to locate the parent, or the parent has expressed no interest in reunifying the child, for at least 3 months.
- The parent is suffering from a mental illness or deficiency of such magnitude that the parent is incapable of benefitting from reunification services, or that, even with the provision of services, the parent is unlikely to be capable of adequately caring for the child within 12 months.
- The child previously has been removed from the home due to physical or sexual abuse, and, after the child was returned to the parent, the child was removed again within 18 months due to additional abuse.
- The parent committed a dangerous crime against a child, caused a child to suffer serious physical or emotional injury, or knew or reasonably should have known that another person committed a dangerous crime against children or caused a child to suffer serious physical or emotional injury.
- The parent's rights to another child have been terminated, the parent has not successfully addressed the issues that led to the termination, and the parent is unable to fulfill parental responsibilities.
- After a finding that a child is dependent, all the following are true:
 - A child has been removed from the parent on at least two previous occasions.
 - Reunification services were offered or provided to the parent.
 - The parent is unable to fulfill parental responsibilities.
- The parent has been convicted of a dangerous crime against a child; murder or manslaughter of a child; sexual abuse, sexual assault, or molestation of a child; sexual conduct with a minor; commercial sexual exploitation of a minor; or luring a minor for sexual exploitation.
- The parent of a child has been convicted of aiding or abetting, attempting, conspiring, or soliciting to commit any of the crimes listed above.
- A child who is currently younger than age 6 months was exposed to a drug or substance and both of the following are true:
 - The parent of the child is unable to discharge parental responsibilities because of a history of chronic abuse of dangerous drugs or controlled substances.
 - Reasonable grounds exist to believe that the parent's condition will continue for a prolonged or indeterminate period based on a competent opinion from a licensed health-care provider with experience in the area of substance abuse disorders.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ann. Code § 9-27-303

'Reasonable efforts' are measures taken to preserve the family and can include reasonable care and diligence on the part of the Department of Human Services or agency to utilize all available services related to meeting the needs of the juvenile and the family.

'Reasonable efforts' include efforts to involve an incarcerated parent. The department shall do the following:

- Involve an incarcerated parent in case planning
- Monitor compliance with services offered by the Department of Correction to the extent permitted by Federal law
- Offer visitation in accordance with the policies of the Department of Correction, if visitation is appropriate and in the best interests of the child

Reasonable efforts may include the provision of 'family services,' which are relevant services provided to a juvenile or his or her family, including, but not limited to, the following:

- Child care
- Homemaker services
- Crisis counseling
- Cash assistance
- Transportation
- Family therapy
- Physical, psychiatric, or psychological evaluation
- Counseling or treatment
- Postadoptive services

Family services are provided in order to do the following:

- Prevent a juvenile from being removed from a parent, guardian, or custodian
- Reunite the juvenile with the parent, guardian, or custodian from whom the juvenile has been removed
- Implement a permanent plan of adoption or guardianship for a juvenile in a dependency-neglect case
- Rehabilitate a juvenile in a delinquency or family in need of services case

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Code § 9-27-303

Reasonable efforts shall be made as follows:

- Before the placement of a child in foster care to prevent the need for removing the child from the child's home
- To reunify a family after a child has been placed out of the home to make it possible for the child to return home safely
- To obtain permanency for a child who has been in placement more than 12 months, or 15 of the previous 22 months

The juvenile division of circuit court may deem that reasonable efforts have been made when the court has found that the first contact by the department occurred during an emergency in which the child could not safely remain at home, even with reasonable services being provided.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Code § 9-27-303

Reasonable efforts to reunite a child with his or her parent or parents shall not be required in all cases. Reunification shall not be required if a court finds by clear and convincing evidence that the parent has done any of the following:

- Subjected the child to aggravated circumstances, which may include the following:
 - A child has been abandoned, chronically abused, subjected to extreme or repeated cruelty; been sexually abused or sexually exploited; or a determination has been made by a judge that there is little likelihood that services to the family will result in successful reunification.

- A child has been removed from the custody of the parent or guardian and placed in foster care or in the custody of another person three or more times in the past 15 months.
- A child or a sibling has been neglected or abused such that the abuse or neglect could endanger the life of the child.
- Committed or attempted to commit murder or manslaughter of any child
- Committed felony battery to any child that results in serious bodily injury
- Had parental rights terminated to a sibling of the child
- Abandoned an infant
- Registered with a sex offender registry under the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2006

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Welf. & Inst. Code § 361.5

The term 'reunification services' includes the following:

- Child welfare services
- Court-ordered counseling and other treatment services for the reunification of the child with the child's family

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Welf. & Inst. Code § 361.5

Family reunification services are required when a child is removed from a parent's or guardian's custody and shall be provided as follows:

- For a child age 3 or older, services may not be offered for longer than a period of 12 months from the date the child entered foster care.
- For a child under age 3, services may not be offered for longer than period of 6 months from the date the child entered foster care.

For the purpose of placing and maintaining a sibling group together in a permanent home if reunification efforts fail, for a child in a sibling group that was removed from the physical custody of his or her parent or guardian and in which one member of that group was under age 3 on the date of initial removal, court-ordered services to some or all of the sibling group may be limited to a period of 6 months from the date the child entered foster care. For the purposes of this paragraph, a sibling group is two or more children who are related to each other as full or half siblings.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Welf. & Inst. Code § 361.5

Reunification services need not be provided when the court finds by clear and convincing evidence any of the following:

- The whereabouts of the parent are unknown.
- The parent has a mental disability that makes him or her incapable of utilizing services.
- There is a prior adjudication of physical or sexual abuse of a child, and after the child was returned home, the child has been removed due to additional physical or sexual abuse.
- The parent caused the death of another child through abuse or neglect.

- A child younger than age 5 has suffered severe physical abuse that was inflicted by the parent, as defined in § 300(e).
- The parent has inflicted severe physical or sexual abuse on the child or a sibling, and the court finds that it would not benefit the child to pursue reunification with the offending parent.
- The parent is not receiving reunification services for a sibling of the child.
- The child was conceived as a result of a sexual offense.
- The parent has willfully abandoned the child.
- The court ordered termination of reunification services for any siblings of the child because the parent failed to reunify with the sibling, and that parent has not subsequently made a reasonable effort to treat the problems that led to removal of the sibling from the parent.
- The parent's rights to another child have been terminated, and conditions that led to the termination have not been remedied.
- The parent has been convicted of a violent felony.
- The parent has a history of chronic use of drugs or alcohol and refused to comply with a treatment program.
- The parent has indicated a lack of interest in reunification services.
- The parent has on one or more occasions abducted the child or a sibling from his or her placement.
- The parent or guardian knowingly participated in or permitted the sexual exploitation of the child, not including instances in which the parent or guardian can demonstrate by a preponderance of the evidence that he or she was coerced into permitting or participating in the sexual exploitation of the child.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Rev. Stat. § 19-1-103(89), (10)

The term 'reasonable efforts' means the exercise of diligence and care for children who are in out-of-home placement or are at imminent risk of out-of-home placement. In determining whether it is appropriate to provide, purchase, or develop the supportive and rehabilitative services that are required to prevent unnecessary placement of a child outside of a child's home or to foster the safe reunification of a child with a child's family, or whether it is appropriate to find and finalize an alternative permanent plan for a child. In making reasonable efforts, the child's health and safety shall be the paramount concern. Services provided by a county or city agency in accordance with § 19-3-208 are deemed to meet the reasonable effort standard described in this subsection. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to conflict with Federal law.

The term 'appropriate treatment plan,' as used in § 19-3-508(1)(e), means a treatment plan approved by the court that is reasonably calculated to render the particular respondent fit to provide adequate parenting to the child within a reasonable time and that relates to the child's needs.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Rev. Stat. § 19-1-115(6)

Reasonable efforts must be made as follows:

- To prevent or eliminate the need to remove the child from the home
- To reunite the child and the family if legal custody has been awarded to the Department of Human Services

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Rev. Stat. § 19-1-115(7)

Reasonable efforts are not required to prevent the child's removal from the home or to reunify the child and the family in the following circumstances:

- The court finds that the parent has subjected the child to aggravated circumstances to such an extent that grounds exist for termination of the parent's parental rights, as described in § 19-3-604(1).
- The parental rights of the parent with respect to a sibling of the child have been involuntarily terminated, unless the prior sibling termination resulted from a parent delivering a child to a firefighter or a hospital staff member pursuant to § 19-3-304.5.
- The court finds that the parent has been convicted of murder or voluntary manslaughter of another child of the parent; aiding, abetting, or attempting to commit such crimes; or a felony assault that resulted in serious bodily injury to the child or to another child of the parent.

Citation: Gen. Stat. § 46b-129

The term 'reasonable efforts' refers to the services to be provided to the parents and the steps the parents may take to address the problems that prevent the child from safely reuniting with the parents.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Gen. Stat. §§ 46B-129; 17a-111b

The Department of Children and Families must make reasonable efforts to keep the child or youth with his or her parents prior to the issuance of an order to remove the child from the home. If the child is removed from the home, reasonable efforts must be made to achieve the goals of the permanency plan.

The Commissioner of Children and Families shall make reasonable efforts to reunify a parent with a child unless the court (1) determines that such efforts are not required pursuant to § 17a-111b(b) or § 17a-112(j), or (2) has approved a permanency plan other than reunification pursuant to § 46b-129(k).

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Gen. Stat. § 17a-111b

The commissioner or any other party may, at any time, file a motion with the court for a determination that reasonable efforts to reunify the parent with the child are not required. The court may determine that such efforts are not required if the court finds upon clear and convincing evidence the following:

- The parent has subjected the child to the following aggravated circumstances:
 - The parent has abandoned the child.
 - The parent has inflicted or knowingly permitted another person to inflict sexual molestation or exploitation or severe physical abuse on the child or engaged in a pattern of abuse of the child.
- The parent has killed, through a deliberate, nonaccidental act, another child of the parent or a sibling of the child; or has requested, commanded, importuned, attempted, conspired, or solicited to commit or knowingly permitted another person to commit the killing of the child, another child of the parent, or a sibling of the child.
- The parent has committed or knowingly permitted another person to commit an assault, through deliberate, nonaccidental act, that resulted in serious bodily injury of the child, another child of the parent, or a sibling of the child.

- The parental rights of the parent to a sibling have been terminated within 3 years of the filing of a petition pursuant to this section, provided the commissioner has made reasonable efforts to reunify the parent with the child for at least 90 days.
- The parent was convicted of sexual assault, except a conviction of a violation of § 53a-71 or 53a-73a resulting in the conception of the child.
- The child was placed in the care and control of the commissioner pursuant to the provisions of §§ 17a-57 to 17a-61, inclusive.

The Division of Family Services will provide family preservation services.

The division must prepare and maintain a written case plan for each child under its supervision or custody that shall include, but not be limited to, a description of the child's problems, the care and treatment of the child, and any other services to be provided to the child and the child's family.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Code Tit. 29, § 9003

The division will provide family preservation services to those families whose children are at imminent risk of out-of-home placement when it is determined that out-of-home placement can be avoided. However, the division's highest priority in cases of abuse and neglect where an investigation is required shall be the health and safety of the child, and nothing herein will prevent the division from removing a child from the child's home when it has been determined that the child's safety and well-being may be jeopardized by remaining in the family home.

Each case plan must be designed to achieve any placement of the child outside of the child's home in the least restrictive setting available and in close proximity to the child's home, consistent with the best interests and special needs of the child.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Code Tit. 13, § 1103

The division is not required to perform, but is not prohibited from performing, reunification and related services, as outlined in title 29, § 9003, when the grounds for termination of parental rights are those stated below:

- The child has been abandoned.
- The parent has been found by a court of competent jurisdiction to have done any of the following:
 - Committed a felony-level offense against a child
 - Aided or abetted, attempted, conspired, or solicited to commit an offense listed above
 - Committed or attempted to commit the offense of Dealing in Children
 - Committed the felony-level offense of endangering the welfare of a child
- The parent's parental rights over a sibling of the child have been involuntarily terminated in a prior proceeding.
- The parent has subjected the child to torture, chronic abuse, sexual abuse, and/or life-threatening abuse.

- A child has suffered unexplained serious physical injury, death, or near death under circumstances that would indicate that the injuries resulted from the intentional or reckless conduct or willful neglect of the parent.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ann. Code § 4-1301.02

Family preservation services are services for children and families that are at risk of abuse or neglect, or are in crisis, and include the following:

- Services designed to help children return to families from which they have been removed, or be placed for adoption, when safe and appropriate, or with a legal guardian, or, if adoption or legal guardianship is determined not to be safe and appropriate for the child, in another permanent living arrangement
- Replacement prevention services
- Services that provide follow-up care to families to whom a child has returned after commitment
- Respite care services
- Services designed to improve parenting skills and abilities

Family support services promote the safety and well-being of children and families, are community-based, and are designed to do the following:

- Increase family strength and stability
- Increase parent confidence and competence
- Afford children safe, stable, and supportive family environments
- Enhance child development

Time-limited family reunification services are services and activities provided to a committed child and to the child's parent, guardian, or custodian in order to facilitate the safe, appropriate, and timely reunification of the child during the 15 months following the child's entry into foster care. Time-limited family reunification services include the following:

- Individual, group, and family counseling
- Inpatient, residential, or outpatient substance abuse treatment services
- Mental health services
- Assistance to address domestic violence
- Services designed to provide temporary child care and therapeutic services for families
- Transportation to or from any of the services and activities described above

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Code § 4-1301.09a

The Child and Family Services Agency shall make reasonable efforts to preserve and reunify the family, as follows:

- Prior to the removal of the child from the home to prevent or eliminate the need for removing the child
- To make it possible for the child to return home safely
- To place the child in accordance with that plan in order to finalize a permanent placement if return home is inconsistent with the child's permanency plan

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Code § 4-1301.09a

Reasonable efforts to reunify the parent with his or her child are not required if the any of the following applies:

- The parent has subjected the child, a sibling, or other child to cruelty, abandonment, torture, chronic abuse, or sexual abuse.
- The parent has committed, aided, abetted, solicited, or attempted to commit murder or voluntary manslaughter of a sibling or other child.
- The parent has committed a felony assault against the child, a sibling, or other child.
- The parent has had his or her parental rights terminated involuntarily with respect to a sibling of the child.
- The parent is required to register with a sex offender registry under 42 U.S.C. § 16913(a).

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ann. Stat. § 39.521(1)(g)

The term 'reasonable efforts' means the exercise of reasonable diligence and care by the Department of Children and Families to provide the services ordered by the court or delineated in the case plan.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. § 39.521(1)(f), (g)

If the court finds that the prevention or reunification efforts by the department will allow the child to remain safely at home or be returned to the home safely, the court shall allow the child to remain in or return to the home after making a specific finding of fact that the reasons for removal have been remedied to the extent that the child's safety; well-being; and physical, mental, and emotional health will not be endangered.

If the court places the child in an out-of-home placement, the disposition order must include a written determination that the child cannot remain at home safely with an in-home safety plan and that removal of the child is necessary to protect the child. If the child is removed before the disposition hearing, the order also must include a written determination as to whether, after removal, the department made a reasonable effort to reunify the parent and child.

The court shall document whether reasonable efforts have been made through the following:

- Written findings as to whether an in-home safety plan could have prevented removal
- If an in-home safety plan was indicated, a brief written description of what appropriate and available safety management services were initiated
- A statement as to why further efforts could or could not have prevented or shortened the separation of the parent and child

A court may find that the department made a reasonable effort to prevent the need for removal if the first contact of the department with the family occurs during an emergency, and the department's assessment of the home situation indicates an immediate danger to the child's safety that cannot be mitigated by the provision of safety management services.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. §§ 39.521(1)(g); 39.806(1)

Reasonable efforts to reunify are not required if the court finds that any of the acts listed in § 39.806(1)(f)-(l) have occurred. These acts include the following:

- The parent engaged in egregious conduct or had the opportunity to prevent and knowingly failed to prevent egregious conduct that threatened the child's life; safety; or physical, mental, or emotional health.
- The parent has subjected the child or another child to aggravated child abuse, sexual battery, sexual abuse, or chronic abuse.
- The parent has committed the murder, manslaughter, aiding or abetting the murder, or conspiracy or solicitation to murder the other parent or another child, or a felony battery that resulted in serious bodily injury to the child or to another child.
- The parental rights of the parent to a sibling of the child have been terminated involuntarily.
- The parent has a history of extensive, abusive, and chronic use of alcohol or a controlled substance that makes him or her incapable of caring for the child and has refused or failed to complete available treatment.
- A newborn child had a positive test that indicated the presence of alcohol or a controlled substance, the presence of which was not the result of medical treatment to the mother or the newborn, and the mother is the birth mother of at least one other child who was found dependent due to exposure to a controlled substance or alcohol, after which the mother had the opportunity to participate in substance abuse treatment.
- On three or more occasions, the child or another child of the parent has been placed in out-of-home care, and the conditions that led to the child's out-of-home placement were caused by the parent.

A reasonable effort by the department for reunification has been made if the appraisal of the home situation by the department indicates that the severity of the conditions of dependency is such that reunification efforts are inappropriate.

'Reasonable efforts' means due diligence and the provision of appropriate services.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Code §§ 15-11-202; 15-11-203

Except as provided below, reasonable efforts shall be made to preserve or reunify families as follows:

- Prior to the placement of an alleged dependent child in the custody of the Division of Family and Children Services (DFCS) to prevent the need for removing the child from his or her home
- To eliminate the need for removal and make it possible for a child alleged to be or adjudicated as a dependent child to return safely to his or her home at the earliest possible time

In determining the type of reasonable efforts to be made to a child alleged to be or adjudicated as a dependent child and in making such reasonable efforts, such child's health and safety shall be the paramount concern.

If the court determines that reasonable efforts to reunify a child with his or her parents have been made, or DFCS has submitted a written report to the court that does not contain a plan for reunification services, then reasonable efforts shall be made to place a child in a timely manner in accordance with the permanency plan and to complete whatever steps are necessary to finalize the permanent placement of such child.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Code § 15-11-203

The court may direct that reasonable efforts to eliminate the need for placement of an alleged dependent child shall not be required or shall cease if the court determines that the parent has done any of the following:

- Has subjected his or her child to aggravated circumstances, as defined in § 15-11-2(5)
- Has been convicted of the murder or voluntary manslaughter of another child of the parent
- Has been convicted of aiding or abetting, attempting, conspiring, or soliciting to commit murder or voluntary manslaughter of another child of the parent
- Has been convicted of committing a felony assault that results in serious bodily injury to the child or another child of the parent
- Has been convicted of rape, sodomy, aggravated sodomy, child molestation, aggravated child molestation, incest, sexual battery, or aggravated sexual battery of the alleged dependent child or another child of the parent
- Is required to register as a sex offender and that preservation of a parent-child relationship is not in the child's best interests
- Has had his or her rights to a sibling of the child terminated involuntarily and the circumstances leading to the termination of parental rights to that sibling have not been resolved

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ann. Code Tit. 19, § 13304

A service plan is a specific, written plan prepared by Child Protective Services and presented to members of the child's family. The service plan should also include, but not necessarily be limited to, the specific services or treatment that the parties will be provided and the specific actions the parties must take or specific responsibilities that the parties must assume.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Code Tit. 19, § 13304

The service plan should set forth the following:

- The steps that will be necessary to facilitate the return of the child to a safe family home if the proposed placement of the child is in foster care or in alternate placement outside of the child's home
- The steps that will be necessary for the child to remain in a safe family home with the assistance of a service plan, if the proposed placement of the child is in a family home under Child Protective Services' supervision
- The steps that will be necessary to make the family home a safe family home and to terminate intervention of Child Protective Services into the family and eliminate, if possible, the necessity for the filing of a petition with the court under this chapter

The service plan shall be carefully formulated with the family in a timely manner. Every reasonable opportunity should be provided to help the child's legal custodian to succeed in remedying the problems that put the child at substantial risk of being harmed in the family home. Each appropriate resource, public and private, family and friend, should be considered and used to maximize the legal custodian's potential for providing a safe family home for the child. Full and careful consideration shall be given to the religious, cultural, and ethnic values of the child's legal custodian when service plans are being discussed and formulated.

The service plan shall provide the specific steps necessary to facilitate the return of the child to a safe family home, if the proposed placement of the child is in foster care under foster custody. These specific steps shall include treatment and services that will be provided, actions completed, specific measurable and behavioral changes that must be achieved, and responsibilities assumed.

The Department of Health and Welfare shall prepare a written case plan in every case in which the child is determined to be within the jurisdiction of the court, including cases in which the parent(s) is incarcerated.

If the child is placed in the legal custody of the department, the case plan shall set forth reasonable efforts that will be made to make it possible for the child to return home. The case plan also shall address the following:

- Identify the services to be provided to the child, including services to identify and meet any special educational, emotional, physical, or developmental needs the child may have; to assist the child in adjusting to the placement; or to ensure the stability of the placement
- Address options for maintaining the child's connection to the community, including individuals with a significant relationship to the child and organizations or community activities with which the child has a significant connection
- Include a goal of reunification and a plan for achieving that goal

The reunification plan shall identify all issues that need to be addressed before the child can safely be returned home without department supervision. The reunification plan shall specifically identify the tasks to be completed by the department, each parent, or others to address each issue, including services to be made available by the department to the parents and in which the parents are required to participate and deadlines for completion of each task. The case plan shall state with specificity the role of the department toward each parent. When appropriate, the reunification plan should identify terms for visitation, supervision of visitation, and child support.

If the court vests legal custody in the department or other authorized agency, the court shall make detailed written findings based on facts in the record as to whether the department made reasonable efforts to prevent the placement of the child in foster care, including findings, when appropriate, with regard to the following:

- Reasonable efforts were made but were not successful in eliminating the need for foster care placement of the child.
- The department made reasonable efforts to prevent removal but was not able to safely provide preventive services.
- Reasonable efforts to temporarily place the child with related persons were made but were not successful.
- Reasonable efforts were not required as the parent had subjected the child to aggravated circumstances.

Reasonable efforts are not required if the parent has subjected the child to aggravated circumstances as determined by the court. 'Aggravated circumstances' include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Circumstances in which the parent has engaged in any of the following:
 - Abandonment, chronic abuse, or chronic neglect of the child
 - Chronic neglect or chronic abuse of a child shall consist of abuse or neglect that is so extreme or repetitious as to indicate that return of the child to the home would result in unacceptable risk to the health and welfare of the child.
 - Sexual abuse against a child of the parent, which includes any conduct described in §§ 18-1506, 18-1506A, 18-1507, 18-1508, 18-1508A, 18-6101, 18-6608, or 18-8602
 - Torture of a child; any conduct listed in § 18-8303(1) (including ritualized abuse of a child, lewd conduct, murder committed in the perpetration of rape, kidnapping committed for the purpose of rape, committing an infamous crime against nature, committing any lewd and lascivious act upon any child under age 16 for purposes of sexual gratification or arousal, rape, forcible sexual penetration by use of a foreign object, or sex trafficking); battery or an injury to a child that results in serious or great bodily injury to a child; voluntary manslaughter of a child; or aiding or abetting such voluntary manslaughter, soliciting such voluntary manslaughter, or attempting or conspiring to commit such voluntary manslaughter

- The parent has committed murder, aided or abetted a murder, solicited a murder, or attempted or conspired to commit murder.
- The parental rights of the parent to another child have been terminated involuntarily.

The term 'family preservation services' refers to all services to help families, including adoptive and extended families.

Appropriate family preservation services shall be included in the service plan if the Department of Children and Family Services has determined that those services will ensure the child's health and safety, are in the child's best interests, and will not place the child in imminent risk of harm. Such plans may include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Case management services
- Homemakers, including emergency caretakers, housekeepers, and chore services
- Counseling, including individual therapy, infant stimulation therapy, family therapy, group therapy, self-help groups, drug and alcohol abuse counseling, vocational counseling, and postadoption services
- Parent education
- Day care, including protective day care and day care to meet educational, prevocational, or vocational needs
- Emergency assistance and advocacy assessments, including coordinated services to secure emergency cash, food, and housing
- Respite care
- In-home health care
- Transportation to obtain any of the above services
- Medical assistance

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Cons. Stat. Ch. 20, § 505/5

The department shall offer family preservation services to help families, including adoptive and extended families. Such services shall be offered for the following purposes:

- To prevent the placement of children in substitute care when the children can be cared for at home or in the custody of the person responsible for the children's welfare
- To reunite children with their families
- To maintain an adoptive placement

Family preservation services shall only be offered when doing so will not endanger the children's health or safety. The child and his or her family shall be eligible for services as soon as the report of suspected child abuse or neglect is determined to be indicated. The department may offer services to any family about whom a report of suspected child abuse or neglect has been filed prior to concluding its investigation. The department also may provide services to any child or family who is the subject of a report or may refer the family to services available from other agencies in the community, even if the report is determined to be unfounded, if the conditions in the child's or family's home are reasonably likely to subject the child or family to future reports of suspected child abuse or neglect. Acceptance of such services shall be voluntary.

When a child is placed in foster care, the department shall ensure and document that reasonable efforts were made to prevent or eliminate the need to remove the child from the child's home. The department must make reasonable efforts to reunify the family when temporary placement of the child occurs unless otherwise required.

When the department believes that further reunification services would be ineffective, it may request a finding from the court that reasonable efforts are no longer appropriate. The court shall grant this motion with respect to a parent of the minor if the court finds after a hearing that any of the following apply:

- The parent has had his or her parental rights to another child involuntarily terminated.
- The parent has been convicted of any of the following:
 - First-degree or second-degree murder of another child of the parent
 - Attempt, conspiracy, or solicitation to commit first-degree or second-degree murder of another child of the parent
 - Aggravated battery, aggravated battery of a child, or felony domestic battery, any of which has resulted in serious bodily injury to the minor or another child of the parent
 - An offense in any other State substantially similar to any of the above offenses

The department is not required to provide further reunification services after such a finding.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ann. Stat. § 232.102(12)

The term 'reasonable efforts' refers to efforts made to preserve and unify a family. Reasonable efforts may include, but are not limited to, family-centered services if the child's safety in the home can be maintained during the time the services are provided.

The term 'family-centered services' means services and other support intended to maintain a child safely with the child's family or with a relative; to return a child, safely and in a timely manner, to the home of the child's parent or relative; or to promote the achievement of concurrent planning goals by identifying and helping the child secure placement for adoption, with a guardian, or with other alternative permanent family connections. Family-centered services are adapted to the individual needs of a family in regard to the specific services and other support provided to the child's family and the intensity and duration of service delivery. Family-centered services are intended to preserve a child's connections to the child's neighborhood, community, and family and to improve the overall capacity of the child's family to provide for the needs of the children in the family.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. § 232.102(12)

Reasonable efforts are required as follows:

- Prior to out-of-home placement of a child in foster care to eliminate the need for removal of the child
- To make it possible for the child to return safely to the family's home

If returning the child to the family's home is not appropriate or possible, reasonable efforts shall include the efforts made in a timely manner to finalize a permanency plan for the child. A child's health and safety shall be the paramount concern in making reasonable efforts.

In determining whether reasonable efforts have been made, the court shall consider both of the following:

- The type, duration, and intensity of services or support offered or provided to the child and the child's family
- The relative risk to the child of remaining in the child's home versus removal of the child

If family-centered services were not provided, the court record shall enumerate the reasons the services were not provided, including, but not limited to, whether the services were not available, not accepted by the child's family, judged to be unable to protect the child and the child's family during the time the services would have been provided, judged to be unlikely to be successful in resolving the problems which would lead to removal of the child, or other services were found to be more appropriate.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. § 232.102(14)

If the court determines by clear and convincing evidence that aggravated circumstances exist, the court may waive the requirement for making reasonable efforts. The existence of aggravated circumstances is indicated by any of the following:

- The parent has abandoned the child.
- The court finds the child in need of assistance based on a finding of physical or sexual abuse or neglect.
- The parent's parental rights to another child have been terminated and there is clear and convincing evidence that services likely will not, within a reasonable time, correct the conditions that led to the child's removal from the home.
- The parent has been convicted of murder or voluntary manslaughter of another child or aiding, abetting, attempting, conspiring, or soliciting to commit either crime.
- The parent has been convicted of a felony assault that resulted in serious bodily injury to the child or another child of the parent.

Citation: Pol. & Proc. Man. § 3371

The primary goal of the Department for Children and Families (DCF) and the Adoption and Safe Families Act (ASFA) is the safety of the child.

Services to the family that are used to document reasonable efforts include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Referral to DCF family services
- Referral to other community resource agencies (i.e. clothing/food banks, day care centers, churches, and counseling centers, etc.)
- Referral to services provided by the school system
- Referral to the family preservation case management provider

Services to the family and/or child that facilitate reintegration include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Assistance in building a family support network
- Family counseling/therapy
- Assistance in accessing school resources
- Parenting classes
- Referral to drug/alcohol treatment
- Individual therapy
- In-home services
- Budgeting instruction
- Employment services
- Housing assistance
- Assistance in accessing all applicable community resources
- Assistance with transportation and in developing the family's transportation resources
- Development of a safety plan at reintegration
- Development of a crisis intervention plan

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Pol. & Proc. Man. § 3371

Reasonable efforts shall be made to prevent the removal of the child from the home. Documentation prepared by the court must articulate reasonable efforts the agency made to keep the child at home or demonstrate that an emergency existed, and the child's safety was in jeopardy, requiring out-of-home placement.

Reasonable efforts need to be taken into consideration when determining case plan objectives. It is important to be aware of services that have already been implemented as well as services that may yet be needed.

When a child has been removed from his/her home, the child welfare case management provider is responsible for the provision of services to facilitate reintegration. The decision to recommend reintegration is a decision made by and communicated to the court. The primary factors in this decision are the safety and well-being of the child. Demonstrating reasonable efforts to return a child home when there is a concurrent plan is especially important.

During the time the child is in out-of-home placement, the case management provider shall ensure the family receives services to address the concerns that resulted in out-of-home placement. Identification of these services shall take place during all case-planning conferences. The case management provider shall continually monitor the effectiveness of these services.

The family shall receive adequate follow-up services from the case management provider during the 12 months aftercare period following the child's return home.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. § 38-2255; Pol. & Proc. Man. § 3371

If custody of the child has been awarded to a person other than a parent, a permanency plan shall be prepared. If a permanency plan is provided at the dispositional hearing, the court may determine whether reintegration is a viable alternative. In determining whether reintegration is a viable alternative, the court shall consider whether:

- The parent has been found by a court to have committed one of the following crimes or to have aided and abetted, attempted, conspired, or solicited the commission of one of these crimes:
 - First- or second-degree murder
 - Capital murder
 - Voluntary manslaughter
 - Felony battery that resulted in bodily injury
- The parent has subjected the child or another child to aggravated circumstances.
- The parent has previously been found to be an unfit parent.
- The child has been in an out-of-home placement for 15 of the most recent 22 months.
- The parents have failed to work diligently toward reintegration.
- The secretary has provided the family with services necessary for the safe return of the child to the home.
- It is reasonable to expect reintegration to occur within a timeframe consistent with the child's developmental needs.

In policy: Both ASFA and the Kansas Code for the Care of Children clarify that child safety is paramount and efforts to maintain a child at home or reintegrate the child are not required when any of the following apply:

- A parent has been convicted of murder of any child.
- A parent has aided, abetted, attempted, conspired or solicited the murder of any child.

- A parent has been convicted of a felony battery that resulted in bodily injury to any child.
- A parent has subjected any child to abandonment, torture, chronic abuse, sexual abuse, or chronic life-threatening neglect.
- Parental rights to any child have been involuntarily terminated.
- The child has been in out-of-home placement for 15 of the last 22 months.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Rev. Stat. § 620.020

The term 'reasonable efforts' means the exercise of ordinary diligence and care by the department to utilize all preventive and reunification services that are available to the community and necessary to enable to child to live safely at home.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Rev. Stat. §§ 620.020; 620.130

Reunification services are remedial services that are designed to do the following:

- Strengthen the family unit
- Secure reunification of the family and child, where appropriate, as quickly as practicable
- Prevent the future removal of the child from the family

When the court is petitioned to remove or continue the removal of a child from the custody of his parent or other person exercising custodial control or supervision, the court first shall consider whether the child may be reasonably protected against the alleged dependency, neglect, or abuse by alternatives less restrictive than removal. Such alternatives may include, but shall not be limited to, the provision of medical, educational, psychiatric, psychological, social work, counseling, day care, or homemaking services with monitoring wherever necessary by the Cabinet for Health and Family Services or other appropriate agency. When the court specifically finds that such alternatives are adequate to reasonably protect the child against the alleged dependency, neglect, or abuse, the court shall not order the removal or continued removal of the child.

If the court orders the removal or continues the removal of the child, services provided to the parent and the child shall be designed to promote the protection of the child and the return of the child safely to the child's home as soon as possible. The cabinet shall develop a treatment plan for each child designed to meet the needs of the child.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Rev. Stat. §§ 610.127; 600.020

Reasonable efforts shall not be required if a court determines the following:

- The parent has subjected the child to aggravated circumstances, including any of the following:
 - The parent has not had contact with the child for more than 90 days.
 - The parent is incarcerated for at least 1 year, will be unavailable to care for the child, and there is no appropriate relative to care for the child.
 - The parent has sexually abused the child and refused available treatment.
 - The parent has engaged in abuse of the child that required removal two or more times in the last 2 years.
 - The parent has caused the child serious physical injury.

- The parent has been convicted of having caused the death of another child of the parent.
- The parent has committed a felony assault that resulted in serious bodily injury to the child or another child of the parent.
- The parent had his or her parental rights to another child terminated involuntarily.
- The parent has engaged in a pattern of conduct due to a substance use disorder that has rendered the parent incapable of caring for the immediate and ongoing needs of the child and has refused or failed to complete a treatment plan.
- The parent has a mental illness or retardation that places the child at substantial risk of harm even if services were provided to the parent for 12 months.
- The parent has sexually abused the child or is required to register on a sex offender registry under 42 U.S.C. § 16913, the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act of 2006.
- Other circumstances make reasonable efforts inconsistent with the best interests of the child and the permanency plan for the child.

The term 'reasonable efforts' means the exercise of ordinary diligence and care by department caseworkers and supervisors and shall assume the availability of a reasonable program of services to children and their families.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ch. Code Art. 626; 684

The court shall determine whether the Department of Children and Family Services has made reasonable efforts to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of the child from his or her home and, after removal, to make it possible for the child to return home safely.

The court may authorize, with the consent of the State, continued implementation of a safety plan prior to the adjudication if there are reasonable grounds to believe the child is in need of care and that the continued implementation of the safety plan is necessary for his or her safety and protection. The safety plan shall continue to set forth conditions as determined or agreed upon by the State as necessary for the protection of the child's health and safety while remaining in the home.

When the child is to be removed from his or her parents' custody, the court shall determine whether reasonable efforts have been made to prevent removal and what preventive or reunification efforts, or both, were made, and why further efforts could or could not have prevented or shortened the separation of the family.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ch. Code Art. 672.1

At any time in a child in need of care proceeding for a child who is in the custody of the department, the department may file a motion for a judicial determination that efforts to reunify the parent and child are not required. The department shall have the burden of demonstrating by clear and convincing evidence that reunification efforts are not required, considering the health and safety of the child and the child's need for permanency.

Efforts to reunify the parent and child are not required if a court has determined the following:

- The parent has subjected the child to egregious conduct or conditions, including any of the grounds for termination of parental rights pursuant to Article 1015.
- The parent has committed or attempted to commit murder or manslaughter of another child of the parent or any other child or has aided or abetted, attempted, conspired, or solicited to commit such a murder or manslaughter.
- The parent has committed a felony that resulted in serious bodily injury to the child, another child of the parent, or any other child.
- The parent's parental rights to a sibling have been terminated involuntarily.

The Department of Health and Human Services shall develop a written rehabilitation plan that includes:

- Services that must be provided to address the problems in the family that present a risk of harm to the child
- Provisions to ensure the safety of the child while the parent engages in those services
- A means to measure the extent to which progress has been made
- Visitation that protects the child's physical and emotional well-being

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. Tit. 22, § 4036-B

The department shall make reasonable efforts to do the following:

- Prevent removal of the child from home, unless the court finds the presence of an aggravating factor
- Rehabilitate and reunify the family, as provided in § 4041(1-A), unless the court has ordered that the department need not commence or may cease reunification
- Finalize the permanency plan

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. Tit. 22, §§ 4041(2)(A-2); 4002(1-B)

The court may order that reunification efforts are not required if it finds one of the following:

- The existence of an aggravating factor
- That continuation of reunification efforts is inconsistent with the permanency plan for the child

An aggravating factor includes any of the following circumstances with regard to the parent:

- The parent has subjected a child for whom the parent was responsible to rape, gross sexual misconduct, gross sexual assault, sexual abuse, incest, aggravated assault, kidnapping, promotion of prostitution, sexual exploitation of a minor, sex trafficking or aggravated sex trafficking, abandonment, torture, chronic abuse, or any other treatment that is heinous or abhorrent to society.
- The parent refused for 6 months to comply with treatment required in a reunification plan with regard to the child.

- The parent has been convicted of any of the following crimes and the victim of the crime was a child for whom the parent was responsible or was a child who was a member of a household lived in or frequented by the parent:
 - Murder, felony murder, or manslaughter
 - Aiding, conspiring, or soliciting murder or manslaughter
 - Felony assault that results in serious bodily injury
 - Any comparable crime in another jurisdiction
- The parental rights of the parent to a sibling have been terminated involuntarily.
- The parent has abandoned the child.

The Department of Human Resources shall provide time-limited family reunification services to a child placed in an out-of-home placement and to the parent or guardian of the child in order to facilitate the child's safe and appropriate reunification in a timely manner.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Family Law § 5-525(e)

Reasonable efforts shall be provided to preserve or reunify a family, as follows:

- Prior to an out-of-home placement to prevent or eliminate the need for removing the child from home
- To make it possible for a child to return home safely
- To finalize a permanent placement for the child if continuation of reasonable efforts is determined to be inconsistent with the permanency plan

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Courts & Jud. Proc. § 3-812(b)

A local department may ask the court to find that reasonable efforts to reunify a child with the child's parent are not required if the local department concludes that any of the following are true:

- The parent has subjected the child to any of the following aggravated circumstances:
 - The parent has engaged in or facilitated chronic or severe physical abuse, chronic and life-threatening neglect, sexual abuse, or torture of the child, a sibling of the child, or another child in the household.
 - The parent knowingly failed to take appropriate steps to protect the child after a person in the household inflicted sexual abuse, severe physical abuse, life-threatening neglect, or torture on the child or another child in the household.
 - The child, a sibling of the child, or another child in the household has suffered severe physical abuse or death resulting from abuse by the parent or another adult in the household, and all persons who could have inflicted the abuse or caused the death remain in the household.
 - The parent has abandoned the child.
- The parent has been convicted, in any State or any court of the United States, of any of the following:
 - A crime of violence against a minor offspring of the parent or guardian, the child, or another parent of the child
 - Aiding or abetting, conspiring, or soliciting to commit a crime of violence
- The parent has involuntarily lost parental rights of a sibling of the child.

The term 'crime of violence' includes abduction, arson, kidnapping, manslaughter, mayhem, maiming, rape, robbery, carjacking, sexual offenses, use of a handgun in the commission of a felony or other crime of violence, first-degree child abuse, and assault.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ann. Stat. § 260.012

Reasonable efforts are made by the responsible social services agency exercising due diligence to use culturally appropriate and available services to meet the needs of the child and the child's family. Services may include those provided by the responsible social services agency and other culturally appropriate services available in the community.

When determining whether reasonable efforts have been made, the court shall consider whether services to the child and family met the following standards:

- Relevant to the safety and protection of the child
- Adequate to meet the needs of the child and family
- Culturally appropriate
- Available and accessible
- Consistent and timely
- Realistic under the circumstances

In the case of an Indian child, the responsible social services agency must provide active efforts, as required by the Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. § 260.012

The social services agency has the burden of demonstrating the following:

- It has made reasonable efforts to prevent placement of the child in foster care.
- It has made reasonable efforts to eliminate the need for removal of the child from the child's home and to reunify the child with the child's family at the earliest possible time.
- It has made reasonable efforts to finalize an alternative permanent home for the child, and it has considered permanent alternative homes for the child inside or outside of the State.
- Reasonable efforts to prevent placement and to reunify the child with the parent or guardian are not required.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. § 260.012

Reasonable efforts always are required except when any of the following apply:

- A parent has subjected the child to egregious harm.
- The parent's parental rights to another child have been terminated involuntarily.
- The child is an abandoned infant.
- The parent's custodial rights have been involuntarily transferred to another relative.
- A determination has been made that additional reasonable efforts would be futile and unreasonable under the circumstances.
- The parent has been convicted of murder, manslaughter, assault, or assault with substantial bodily injury, or an attempt or conspiracy to commit any of these crimes, and the victim was another child of the parent.
- The parent has committed sexual abuse against the child or another child of the parent.
- The parent has committed an offense that requires registration as a predatory offender under § 243.166, subd. 1b.
- The parent has been convicted of assault or assault with substantial bodily injury, and the victim was the surviving child.

'Reasonable efforts' means the exercise of reasonable care and due diligence by the Department of Human Services, the Department of Child Protection Services, or any other appropriate entity or person to use appropriate and available services to prevent the unnecessary removal of the child from the home or provide other services related to meeting the needs of the child and the parents.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Code § 43-21-609(g)-(h)

If the child has not been taken into care previously, the court shall determine the following:

- Reasonable efforts have been made to maintain the child within his or her own home but that the circumstances warrant his or her removal, and there is no reasonable alternative to custody.

- The circumstances are of such an urgent nature that no reasonable efforts have been made to maintain the child within his or her own home, and there is no reasonable alternative to custody.

If the court finds that the child should be taken into care, the court shall order that reasonable efforts be made toward the reunification of the child with his or her family.

If the child has been taken into care before the disposition hearing, the court shall determine whether reasonable efforts were made by the Department of Child Protection Services to finalize the child's permanency plan that was in effect on the date of the disposition hearing.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Code § 43-21-603(7)(c)

Reasonable efforts to maintain the child within his or her home shall not be required if the court determines that any of the following are true:

- The parent has subjected the child to aggravated circumstances, including, but not limited to, abandonment, torture, chronic abuse, and sexual abuse.
- The parent has been convicted of murder or voluntary manslaughter of another child of that parent; aiding, abetting, attempting, conspiring, or soliciting to commit that murder or voluntary manslaughter; or a felony assault that results in the serious bodily injury to the surviving child or another child of that parent.
- The parental rights of the parent to a sibling have been terminated involuntarily.
- Continuation of the child's residence within his or her own home would be contrary to the welfare of the child, and placement of the child in foster care is in the best interests of the child.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Rev. Stat. § 432B.393

For the purposes of this section, 'reasonable efforts' have been made if an agency that provides child welfare services that has legal custody of a child has exercised diligence and care in arranging appropriate, accessible, and available services that are designed to improve the ability of a family to provide a safe and stable home for each child in the family, with the health and safety of the child as its paramount concerns. The exercise of such diligence and care includes, without limitation, obtaining necessary and appropriate information concerning the child for the purposes of §§ 127.152, 127.410, and 424.038 and, if necessary, creating an in-home safety plan for the protection of the child.

An agency may satisfy the requirement of making reasonable efforts pursuant to this section by taking no action concerning a child or making no effort to provide services to a child if it is reasonable to do so under the circumstances.

As used in this section, 'in-home safety plan' means a plan created by a child welfare agency to ensure the protection of a child in his or her home, including, without limitation, determining any vulnerabilities of the child, managing any potential threats to the safety of the child, and determining the capacity of the person responsible for the welfare of the child to care for the child.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Rev. Stat. § 432B.393

Except as otherwise provided in this section, the child welfare agency shall make reasonable efforts to preserve and reunify the family of a child, as follows:

- Before the placement of the child in foster care to prevent or eliminate the need to remove the child from the home
- To make it possible for the child to safely return home
- If continuation of reasonable efforts is determined to be inconsistent with the plan for the permanent placement of the child, to place the child in a timely manner in accordance with that plan and to complete whatever actions are necessary to finalize the permanent placement of the child

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Rev. Stat. § 432B.393

Reasonable efforts are not required if the court finds that any of the following applies:

- A parent or other person responsible for the child's welfare has done any of the following:
 - Committed, aided, or abetted in the commission of or attempted, conspired, or solicited to commit murder or voluntary manslaughter
 - Caused the abuse or neglect of the child, which resulted in substantial bodily harm to the child
 - Caused the abuse or neglect of the child, and the abuse or neglect was so extreme or repetitious that returning the child to the home would result in an unacceptable risk to the child's health or welfare
 - Abandoned the child for 60 or more days, and the identity of the parent is unknown
- A parent of the child has, for the previous 6 months, had the ability to contact or communicate with the child and made no more than token efforts to do so.
- The parental rights of a parent to another child have been terminated involuntarily by a court order, and the court order is not currently being appealed.
- The child or a sibling of the child was previously removed from the home due to abuse or neglect, returned to the home, and subsequently removed from the home as a result of additional abuse or neglect.
- The child is less than age 1, the father of the child is not married to the child's mother, and the father:
 - Has failed within 60 days after learning of the birth of the child, to visit the child, to commence proceedings to establish his paternity of the child, or to provide financial support for the child
 - Is entitled to seek custody of the child, but fails to do so within 60 days after learning that the child was placed in foster care
- The child was delivered to a provider of emergency services.
- The child or another child in the household has been sexually abused or has been subjected to neglect by pervasive instances of failure to protect the child from sexual abuse.
- A parent of the child is required to register as a sex offender.

Reasonable efforts must be made to do the following:

- Prior to placement, to preserve the family in order to prevent the need for removing the child from the home
- After placement, to make it possible for the child to return home safely
- In any case where reunification is not the permanency plan, to place the child in a timely manner and finalize the permanent placement of the child

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. §§ 30:4C-11.2; 30:4C-11.3

Reasonable efforts to reunify the child with the family are not required when any of the following applies:

- The parent has subjected the child to aggravated circumstances of abuse, neglect, cruelty, or abandonment.
- The parent has been convicted of murder or manslaughter of a child; aiding, abetting, or attempting to commit such a crime; or committing or attempting to commit an assault resulting in serious bodily injury to a child.
- The parent's parental rights to another child have been terminated involuntarily.

Reasonable efforts to prevent placement are not required when either of the following is true:

- Removal of the child was necessary due to imminent danger to the child's life, safety, or health.
- Efforts to prevent placement were not reasonable due to risk of harm to the child's health or safety.

Effective October 27, 2019: The term 'diligent efforts' means reasonable attempts by an agency to assist, develop, and encourage a meaningful relationship between the parent and child, which include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Consulting and cooperating with the parents to develop a plan for appropriate services to the child and his or her family
- Making suitable arrangements for the parent to visit with the child
- Providing services and other assistance so that problems preventing the child's discharge from care can be resolved or ameliorated
- Informing the parents of the child's progress, development, and health
- Making suitable arrangements with a correctional facility for an incarcerated parent to visit with the child, if such visiting is in the best interests of the child
- When the child is in the custody of authorized agency, providing information outlining the legal rights and obligations of a parent who is incarcerated or in a residential substance abuse treatment program and on social or rehabilitative services available in the community, including family visiting services, to aid in the development of a meaningful relationship between the parent and child

Wherever possible, such information shall include transitional and family support services located in the community to which an incarcerated parent or parent participating in a residential substance abuse treatment program shall return.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Soc. Serv. Law § 358-a(3)(a)

Reasonable efforts must be made to do the following:

- Prior to placement to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of the child from the home

- To make it possible for the child to return home
- If the permanent plan for the child is other than reunification, to make and finalize the alternative permanent placement

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Soc. Serv. Law §§ 358-a(3)(b); 384-b(7)(e)

Reasonable efforts are not required when the court determines the following:

- The parent has subjected the child to aggravated circumstances, including any of the following:
 - The child has been either severely or repeatedly abused.
 - A child has subsequently been found to be an abused child within 5 years after return home following placement in foster care.
 - The parent of a child in foster care has refused and has failed completely, over a period of at least 6 months from the date of removal, to engage in services necessary to eliminate the risk of abuse or neglect if returned to the parent and has failed to secure services on his or her own or otherwise adequately prepare for the child's return home.
- The parent has been convicted of murder or manslaughter, and the victim was another child of the parent. However, the parent must have acted voluntarily in committing such crime.
- The parent has been convicted of an attempt to commit any of the above crimes, and the victim or intended victim was the child or another child of the parent, or the parent has been convicted of conspiring, soliciting, or facilitating any of the above crimes, and the victim or intended victim was the child or another child of the parent.
- The parent has been convicted of assault or aggravated assault upon a person younger than age 11, and the crime resulted in serious physical injury to the child or another child of the parent.
- The parental rights of the parent to a sibling of the child have been involuntarily terminated, unless the court determines that providing reasonable efforts would be in the best interests of the child, would not be contrary to the health and safety of the child, and would likely result in the reunification of the parent and the child in the foreseeable future.

Evidence of diligent efforts by an agency to encourage and strengthen the parental relationship shall not be required when the following apply:

- The parent has failed to keep the agency apprised of his or her location for a period of 6 months.
- An incarcerated parent has failed on more than one occasion while incarcerated to cooperate with an authorized agency in its efforts to help the parent plan for the future of the child or in the agency's efforts to plan and arrange visits with the child.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Gen. Stat. § 7B-101

The term 'reasonable efforts' means the diligent use of abuse prevention or reunification services by the Department of Social Services when a juvenile remaining at home or returning home is consistent with achieving a safe, permanent home for the juvenile within a reasonable period of time. If a court of competent jurisdiction determines that the juvenile is not to be returned home, then reasonable efforts are the diligent and timely use of permanency planning services by a department of social services to develop and implement a permanent plan for the juvenile.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Gen. Stat. § 7B-101

Reasonable efforts must be made to do the following:

- To prevent or eliminate the need for placement of the juvenile out of the home
- To develop and implement a permanent plan for the child when a court determines that the juvenile is not to be returned home

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Gen. Stat. § 7B-901

Unless the court concludes that there is compelling evidence warranting continued reunification efforts, the court shall direct that reasonable efforts for reunification shall not be required if the court makes written findings of fact pertaining to any of the following:

- A court determines or has determined that aggravated circumstances exist because the parent has committed, encouraged the commission of, or allowed the continuation of any of the following upon the juvenile:
 - Sexual abuse
 - Chronic physical or emotional abuse
 - Torture
 - Abandonment
 - Chronic or toxic exposure to alcohol or controlled substances that causes impairment of or addiction in the juvenile
 - Any other act, practice, or conduct that increased the enormity or added to the injurious consequences of the abuse or neglect
- A court terminates or has terminated involuntarily the parental rights of the parent to another child of the parent.
- A court determines or has determined that the parent has done any of the following:
 - Committed murder or voluntary manslaughter of another child of the parent
 - Aided, abetted, attempted, conspired, or solicited to commit murder or voluntary manslaughter of the child or another child of the parent
 - Committed a felony assault resulting in serious bodily injury to the child or another child of the parent
 - Committed sexual abuse against the child or another child of the parent
 - Been required to register as a sex offender on any government-administered registry

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Cent. Code § 27-20-32.2

The term 'reasonable efforts' means the exercise of due diligence by the agency granted authority over the child in using appropriate and available services to meet the needs of the child and his or her family in order to prevent removal of the child from the child's family or, after removal, to use appropriate and available services to eliminate the need for removal, to reunite the child and his or her family, and to maintain family connections. In determining reasonable efforts to be made with respect to a child under this section, and in making reasonable efforts, the child's health and safety must be the paramount concern.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Cent. Code § 27-20-32.2

Reasonable efforts must be made to preserve families, reunify families, and maintain family connections, as follows:

- Prior to the placement of a child in foster care, to prevent or eliminate the need for removing the child from his or her home
- To make it possible for a child to return safely to his or her home
- Whether, and if applicable, to place siblings in the same foster care, relative, guardianship, or adoptive placement, unless it is determined that such a joint placement would be contrary to the safety or well-being of any of the siblings
- In the case of siblings removed from their home who are not jointly placed, to provide for frequent visitation or other ongoing visitation between the siblings, unless it is contrary to the safety or well-being of any of the siblings

If the court determines that continuation of reasonable efforts is inconsistent with the permanency plan for the child, reasonable efforts must be made to place the child in a timely manner in accordance with the permanency plan and to complete whatever steps are necessary to finalize the permanent placement of the child.

For the purpose of § 27-20-30.1 (concerning continued foster care for older youth), reasonable efforts must be made to meet the child's needs before a foster care placement for a child remaining in care for continued foster care purposes.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Cent. Code §§ 27-20-02; 27-20-32.2

Reasonable efforts are not required if any of the following apply:

- The parent has subjected the child to aggravated circumstances, in which a parent does any of the following:
 - Abandons, tortures, chronically abuses, or sexually abuses a child
 - Fails to make substantial efforts to secure treatment for an addiction, mental illness, or other condition for 1 year or one-half a child's lifetime, whichever time period is less
 - Engages in deviant sexual acts, sexual abuse, etc., in which a child is the victim or intended victim
 - Commits murder, manslaughter, negligently causing the death of another, or abuse of a child and the victim is another child of the parent
 - Aids, abets, attempts, conspires, or solicits to commit murder, manslaughter, or negligently causes the death of another and the victim is a child of the parent
 - Commits aggravated assault in which the victim is a child of the parent and suffers serious bodily injury
 - Commits assault, aggravated assault, reckless endangerment, or terrorizing in which a child is the victim or intended victim
 - Has been incarcerated under a sentence for which the release date is either of the following:
 - In the case of a child age 9 or older, after the child's majority
 - In the case of a child under age 9, after the child is twice the child's current age
 - Subjects the child to prenatal exposure to chronic or severe use of alcohol or any controlled substance in a manner not lawfully prescribed by a practitioner
 - Allows the child to be present in an environment subjecting the child to exposure to a controlled substance, chemical substance, or drug paraphernalia
- The parent has had parental rights to another child terminated involuntarily.

Moreover, support services shall continue once the minor is permanently placed.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Laws Tit. 8, § 447s

No reasonable efforts shall be undertaken under the following circumstances:

- The parent suffers from a mental disability of such a magnitude that it prevents the parent from caring properly for the child.
- The child has been previously removed from the home, and after being returned home, he or she is again made a victim of abuse, sexual abuse, and/or neglect.
- The parent has been deprived of patria potestas of another child and has been unable to resolve the problems that led to the loss of patria potestas.
- The parent has caused severe physical harm, abuse, and/or neglect of the child, which put the child's health and physical, mental, and emotional integrity at grave risk.

- The parent has committed any of the following:
 - Murder, assault, or mutilation
 - Rape, incest, or lewd or obscene acts
 - Trafficking of individuals for sexual purposes
 - Remittance, transportation, sale, distribution, publication, exhibition, or possession of obscene materials or obscene shows and exposing minors to those crimes
 - Kidnapping or aggravated kidnapping
 - Abandonment of minors
 - Abduction or perversion of minors
 - Inciting a minor to commit a crime
- The parent covers up or conspires to commit one or more of the crimes above.
- Efforts to change the behavior of the parent have not succeeded 6 months after the service plan was initiated.
- The parent has stated that he or she has no interest in being reunited with the minor.
- A health-care professional certifies that the parent suffers from a chronic controlled substance abuse problem that prevents the return of the minor to the custody of the parent within a period of 6 months of initiating the procedures.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ann. Code § 63-7-720

Reasonable efforts include services that are reasonably available and timely, reasonably adequate to address the needs of the family, reasonably adequate to protect the child, and realistic under the circumstances.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Code §§ 63-7-720; 63-7-1640

When the Department of Social Services has assumed legal custody of a child, the court must determine whether reasonable efforts were made by the department to prevent removal of the child and whether continuation of the child in the home would be contrary to the welfare of the child. The court shall specifically review the following:

- The services made available to the family before the department assumed legal custody of the child and how they related to the needs of the family
- The efforts of the department to provide services to the family before assuming legal custody of the child
- Why the efforts to provide services did not eliminate the need for the department to assume legal custody

When this chapter requires the department to make reasonable efforts to preserve or reunify a family and requires the family court to determine whether these reasonable efforts have been made, the child's health and safety must be the paramount concern.

The family court may rule on whether reasonable efforts to preserve or reunify a family should be required in hearings regarding removal of custody, review of amendments to a placement plan, review of the status of a child in foster care, permanency planning, or in a separate proceeding for this purpose.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Code § 63-7-1640

The department may terminate or forego reasonable efforts to preserve or reunify a family when the family court determines that one or more of the following conditions exist:

- The parent has subjected the child or another child while residing in the parent's domicile to one or more of the following aggravated circumstances:
 - Severe or repeated abuse or neglect
 - Sexual abuse
 - Torture
 - Abandonment
- The parent has been convicted of murder or voluntary manslaughter of another child.
- The parent has been convicted of aiding, abetting, attempting, soliciting, or conspiring to commit murder or voluntary manslaughter of the child or another child residing in the parent's domicile.
- Physical abuse of a child resulted in the death or admission to the hospital for in-patient care of that child, and the abuse was committed by the parent.
- The parent has been convicted of committing, aiding, abetting, conspiring to commit, or soliciting any of the following:
 - An offense against the person
 - Criminal domestic violence

- Criminal domestic violence of a high and aggravated nature
- Assault and battery of a high and aggravated nature
- The parental rights of the parent to another child of the parent have been terminated involuntarily.
- The parent has a diagnosable condition unlikely to change within a reasonable time including, but not limited to, alcohol or drug addiction, mental deficiency, mental illness, or extreme physical incapacity, and the condition makes the parent unable or unlikely to provide minimally acceptable care of the child.
- Other circumstances exist that the court finds make continuation or implementation of reasonable efforts to preserve or reunify the family inconsistent with the permanent plan for the child.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ann. Laws § 26-8A-21

The term 'reasonable efforts' means the provision by the Department of Social Services of any services or assistance that meet the following criteria:

- Are appropriate for the child's parents, including instruction on parenting
- Are available or could be made available without undue financial burden on the department
- Would have a significant likelihood of protecting the child from substantial danger to his or her physical health or from severe emotional damage while enabling the child to remain in the home or to be returned to the home

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Laws § 26-8A-21

Reasonable efforts must be made as follows:

- Prior to removal of an alleged or adjudicated abused or neglected child to prevent or eliminate the need for removal from the home
- To make it possible for the child to return home if he or she has been removed from the home

In determining the adequacy of reasonable efforts, the court shall consider the assistance, services, and efforts of the department. The court shall also consider the good-faith efforts or the lack of good-faith efforts made by the child's parents, guardian, custodian, or other caregiver family to cooperate with the department and to effectively utilize the assistance or services for the benefit and welfare of the child.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Laws § 26-8A-21.1

Reasonable efforts to reunify are not required when any of the following circumstances apply:

- The parent has committed murder, manslaughter, rape, incest, sexual exploitation of a minor, or abuse or cruelty to a minor.
- The parent has committed aggravated assault against the child or another child of the parent.
- The parent has subjected the child or another child to torture or sexual abuse; abandonment for at least 6 months; chronic physical, mental, or emotional injury; or chronic neglect.
- The parent is incarcerated and unavailable to care for the child during a significant period of the child's minority.
- The parent has had his or her parental rights to another child terminated involuntarily.
- The parent has a documented history of abuse or neglect associated with chronic alcohol or drug abuse.

- The parent has exposed the child to or demonstrated an inability to protect the child from substantial harm or the risk of substantial harm, and the child or another child has been removed from the parent's custody because he or she was adjudicated abused and neglected by a court on at least one previous occasion.
- The parent has exposed the child to or demonstrated an inability to protect the child from substantial harm or the risk of substantial harm, the child has been removed from the parent's custody on two separate occasions, and the department offered or provided family services on each of the two separate occasions the child was removed.
- The parent has exposed the child to or demonstrated an inability to protect the child from substantial harm or risk of harm resulting from a crime, act, or omission listed above.
- The parent is required to register as a sex offender pursuant to chapter 22-24B.

The Division of Child and Family Services shall make reasonable efforts to provide services to the child and the child's parent for the purpose of facilitating reunification of the family for a specified period of time. In determining reasonable efforts to be made with respect to a minor, and in making reasonable efforts, the minor's health, safety, and welfare shall be the paramount concern.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Code §§ 62A-4a-203; 78A-6-312

Because the removal of a child from his or her home affects protected, constitutional rights of the parent and has a dramatic, long-term impact on a child, the division shall do the following:

- When possible and appropriate, and without danger to the child's welfare, make reasonable efforts to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of a child from the child's home prior to placement in substitute care
- Determine whether there is substantial cause to believe that a child has been abused or neglected or is in danger of abuse or neglect prior to removing the child from his or her home
- When it is possible and appropriate, make reasonable efforts to make it possible for a child in substitute care to return to his or her home
- Take measures in a timely manner to place the child in accordance with the permanency plan and complete whatever steps are necessary to finalize the permanent placement of the child if continuation of reasonable efforts to reunify a minor is determined to be inconsistent with the final permanency plan for the child

Citation: Ann. Code § 78A-6-312

Reasonable efforts are not required if the court finds by clear and convincing evidence that any of the following circumstances exist:

- The parent's whereabouts is unknown.
- The parent suffers from a severe mental illness that renders the parent incapable of using reunification services.
- The child previously was adjudicated as an abused child, was removed from the home, was returned home, and is being removed due to additional abuse.
- The parent has done any of the following:
 - Caused the death of another minor through abuse or neglect
 - Committed, attempted, or conspired to commit murder or manslaughter of a child
 - Committed sexual abuse against the child
 - Is a registered sex offender or required to register as a sex offender
 - Has caused, is identified as a suspect, or is being prosecuted for intentionally, knowingly, or recklessly causing the death of another parent of the child
- The child suffered severe abuse by the parent or by a person known by the parent, and the parent knew or reasonably should have known about the abused.
- The parent has severely abused the child.
- The parent's rights were terminated with regard to any other child.
- The child was removed from his or her home on at least two previous occasions, and reunification services were offered or provided to the family at those times.

- The parent abandoned the child for 6 months or longer.
- The parent permitted the child to reside, permanently or temporarily, where the parent knew or should have known that a clandestine laboratory operation was located.
- With respect to the child's birth mother, the child has fetal alcohol syndrome, fetal alcohol spectrum disorder, or was exposed prenatally to an illegal or prescription drug, unless the mother completes an approved substance use disorder treatment program.
- Other circumstances preclude reunification efforts or services.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. Tit. 33, §§ 5102; 5321

Reasonable efforts must be made to prevent unnecessary removal of the child from the home. In cases involving a child who has been removed from the home, reasonable efforts must be made to finalize the permanency plan for the child. Reasonable efforts to finalize a permanency plan and may consist of the following:

- When the permanency plan for the child is reunification, efforts to reunify the child and family following the child's removal from the home
- When the permanency plan for the child does not include reunification, efforts to arrange and finalize an alternate permanent living arrangement for the child

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. Tit. 33, § 5102

When making the reasonable efforts determination, the court may find that no services were appropriate or reasonable considering the circumstances. If the court makes written findings that aggravated circumstances are present, the court may make but is not required to make written findings as to whether reasonable efforts were made to prevent removal of the child from the home. Aggravated circumstances include the following:

- The parent has subjected a child to abandonment, torture, chronic abuse, or sexual abuse.
- The parent has been convicted of murder or manslaughter of a child.
- The parent has been convicted of a felony crime that results in serious bodily injury to the child or another child of the parent.
- The parental rights of the parent with respect to a sibling have been terminated.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ann. Code Tit. 5, § 2550

The term 'reasonable efforts' means the exercise of due diligence and care by the Department of Human Services to utilize all available services related to meeting the needs of the child and the family and to assist the parents in remedying the circumstances and conditions that led to the placement of the child and in reinforcing the family structure, including the following:

- Consultation and cooperation with the parent in developing a plan for appropriate services
- Providing services to the family that have been agreed upon in order to further the goal of family reunification
- Informing the parent at appropriate intervals of the child's progress, development, and health
- Facilitating appropriate visitation

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Code Tit. 5, § 2550

Reasonable efforts are not required if the court finds that any of the following grounds for termination of parental rights exists:

- The parent has abandoned the child.
- The parent has not complied with the department's reasonable efforts to achieve reunification.
- The child has been removed from the home for more than 6 months, and:
 - The conditions that led to the child's removal still persist.
 - There is little likelihood that the conditions that led to the child's removal will be remedied within the next 18 months.
- The parent has been convicted of aggravated child abuse or neglect, as defined in tit. 14, § 506, against the child, a sibling, half-sibling, or any other child residing temporarily or permanently in the home of the parent.
- The parent has been convicted of the intentional death of the child's other parent.
- The parent is unable to discharge parental duties due to:
 - Emotional illness, mental illness, or mental deficiency
 - Habitual abuse or addiction to intoxicating liquors, narcotics, or other dangerous drugs
- The parent has failed to manifest an ability and willingness to assume custody of the child.
- Placing the child in the parent's custody would pose a risk of substantial harm to the physical or psychological welfare of the child.
- The parent has relinquished the parent's rights or consented to the child's adoption.
- The parent has:
 - Committed murder or manslaughter of any sibling or half-sibling of the child
 - Aided, abetted, attempted, or conspired to commit such murder or a voluntary manslaughter
 - Committed a felony assault that resulted in serious bodily injury to the child or any sibling or half-sibling
- The parent has on two or more occasions abused or neglected any child.
- Within 18 months after a child's return from an out-of-home placement, the child is removed from the parent's custody and placed in care outside the home a second time.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ann. Code § 16.1-281

Reasonable efforts include programs, care, services, and other support that will be offered to the child and his or her parents that will lead to the return of the child to his or her parents within the shortest practicable time.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Code §§ 16.1-278.4; 16.1-282.1(E)

Reasonable efforts must be made to prevent removal of the child from his or her home, unless continued placement in the home would be contrary to the welfare of the child.

If the child has been removed from the home, reasonable efforts must be made, as follows:

- To reunite the child with the child's family, if returning home is the permanent goal for the child
- To achieve the permanent goal identified in the case plan, if the goal is other than returning the child home

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Code §§ 16.1-281; 16.1-278.4

A finding by the court that reasonable efforts were made to prevent removal of the child from his home shall not be required if the court finds that any of the following circumstances apply:

- The parental rights of the parent regarding a sibling of the child have previously been involuntarily terminated.
- The parent has been convicted of murder or voluntary manslaughter or a felony attempt, conspiracy, or solicitation to commit any such offense, and the victim of the offense was a child of the parent, a child with whom the parent resided at the time the offense occurred, or the other parent of the child.
- The parent has been convicted of felony assault resulting in serious bodily injury, felony bodily wounding resulting in serious bodily injury, or felony sexual assault, and the victim of the offense was a child of the parent or a child with whom the parent resided at the time of such offense.
- Based on clear and convincing evidence, the parent has subjected any child to aggravated circumstances.
- The parent has abandoned a child.

'Aggravated circumstances' include torture, chronic or severe abuse, or chronic or severe sexual abuse, if the victim of such conduct was a child of the parent or child with whom the parent resided at the time such conduct occurred. Aggravated circumstances also include failure to protect the child from such conduct, if the conduct or failure to protect demonstrates a wanton or depraved indifference to human life or has resulted in the death of the child or in serious bodily injury to the child.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Rev. Code §§ 13.34.025; 13.34.130

The Department of Children, Youth, and Families shall coordinate within the administrations of the department and with contracted service providers, including supervising agencies, to ensure that parents in dependency proceedings receive priority access to remedial services recommended by the department or supervising agency in its social study or ordered by the court for the purpose of correcting any parental deficiencies identified in the dependency proceeding that are capable of being corrected in the foreseeable future. Services also may be provided to caregivers other than the parents as identified in § 13.34.138.

For purposes of this chapter, remedial services are those services defined in the Federal Adoption and Safe Families Act as time-limited family reunification services. Remedial services include the following:

- Individual, group, and family counseling
- Substance abuse treatment services
- Mental health services
- Assistance to address domestic violence
- Services designed to provide temporary child care and therapeutic services for families
- Transportation to or from any of the above services and activities

Reasonable efforts include specific services, such as housing assistance, that are provided to the child and the child's parent, guardian, or legal custodian, and preventive services that are offered or provided to prevent the need for out-of-home placement.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Rev. Code §§ 13.34.110; 13.34.130

Reasonable efforts are required to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of the child from the child's home and to make it possible for the child to return home.

An order for out-of-home placement may be made only if the court finds that reasonable efforts have been made to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of the child from the child's home and to make it possible for the child to return home, specifying the services (including housing assistance) that have been provided to the child and the child's parent, guardian, or legal custodian, and that preventive services have been offered or provided to the child and the child's parent, guardian, or custodian, and the services have failed to prevent the need for out-of-home placement, unless the health, safety, and welfare of the child cannot be protected adequately in the home.

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Rev. Code § 13.34.132

Reasonable efforts are not required when there are aggravated circumstances. In determining whether aggravated circumstances exist by clear, cogent, and convincing evidence, the court shall consider one or more of the following:

- Conviction of the parent of rape, criminal mistreatment, or assault of the child
- Conviction of the parent of murder, manslaughter, or homicide by abuse of the child's other parent, sibling, or another child
- Conviction of the parent of attempting, soliciting, or conspiring to commit any of the above crimes
- Conviction of the parent of trafficking or promoting commercial sexual abuse of a minor when the victim of the crime is the child, the child's other parent, a sibling of the child, or another child
- A finding by a court that a parent is a sexually violent predator
- Failure of the parent to complete a treatment plan where such failure has resulted in a prior termination of parental rights to another child and the parent has failed to effect significant change in the interim
- Abandonment of an infant younger than age 3
- Conviction of the parent of a sex offense or incest when the child is born of the offense

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ann. Code §§ 49-1-201; 49-1-206

'Child abuse and neglect services' means social services that are directed toward the following:

- Protecting and promoting the welfare of children who are abused or neglected
- Identifying, preventing, and remedying conditions that cause child abuse and neglect
- Preventing the unnecessary removal of children from their families by identifying family problems and assisting families in resolving problems that could lead to a removal of children and a breakup of the family
- In cases in which children have been removed from their families, providing time-limited reunification services to the children and the families to reunify those children with their families or some portion thereof
- Placing children in suitable adoptive homes when reunifying the children with their families, or some portion thereof, is not possible or appropriate
- Ensuring the adequate care of children or juveniles who have been placed in the custody of the Department of Health and Human Resources or third parties

The term 'time-limited reunification services' means individual, group, and family counseling; inpatient, residential, or outpatient substance abuse treatment services; mental health services; assistance to address domestic violence; services designed to provide temporary child care; and therapeutic services for families, including crisis nurseries and transportation to or from those services, provided during 15 of the most recent 22 months a child has been in foster care, as determined by the earlier date of the first judicial finding that the child is subjected to abuse or neglect or the date that is 60 days after the child is removed from home.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Code § 49-4-604

Reasonable efforts must be made to do the following:

- To preserve the family and to prevent placement
- To eliminate the need for removing the child from the child's home
- To make it possible for the child to return home safely

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Code §§ 49-4-602; 49-4-604

The department is not required to make reasonable efforts to preserve the family if the court determines the following:

- The parent has subjected the child, another child of the parent, or any other child residing in the same household to aggravated circumstances, including abandonment, torture, chronic abuse, and sexual abuse.
- The parent has done any of the following:
 - Committed murder or voluntary manslaughter of the child's other parent, another child of the parent, or any other child residing in the same household
 - Attempted or conspired to commit such a murder or voluntary manslaughter
 - Committed a malicious assault that results in serious bodily injury to the child, the child's other parent, to another child of the parent, or any other child residing in the same household
 - Committed sexual assault or sexual abuse of the child, the child's other parent, another child of the parent, or any other child residing in the same household
 - Has been required by State or Federal law to register with a sex offender registry

- The parental rights of the parent to another child have been terminated involuntarily.
- The parent has habitually abused or is addicted to alcohol, controlled substances, or drugs, to the extent that proper parenting skills have been seriously impaired.
- The parent has refused to cooperate in the development of a reasonable family case plan.
- The abusing parent or parents have not responded to rehabilitative efforts designed to reduce or prevent the abuse or neglect of the child.
- The parent has abandoned the child.
- The abusing parent has repeatedly or seriously injured the child physically or emotionally or has sexually abused or sexually exploited the child.
- The battered parent's parenting skills have been seriously impaired, and the person has willfully refused or is presently unwilling or unable to cooperate with a reasonable treatment plan.

What Are Reasonable Efforts?

Citation: Ann. Stat. § 14-3-440

Reasonable efforts require services to the family that are accessible, available, and appropriate.

When Reasonable Efforts Are Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. § 14-3-440

Reasonable efforts must be made as follows:

- Prior to placement of the child outside the home to prevent or eliminate the need for removing the child from the child's home
- To make it possible for the child to return home safely
- If continuation of reasonable efforts is determined to be inconsistent with the permanency plan for the child, to complete the steps necessary to finalize the permanent placement of the child

When Reasonable Efforts Are NOT Required

Citation: Ann. Stat. § 14-2-309(b)-(c)

Reasonable efforts to reunify the family are not required when the parent has been convicted of any of the following crimes:

- Murder or voluntary manslaughter of another child of the parent or aiding and abetting, attempting, conspiring to commit, or soliciting such a crime
- Commission of a felony assault that results in serious bodily injury to a child of the parent

Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, evidence that reasonable efforts have been made to preserve and reunify the family is not required in any case in which the court determines, by clear and convincing evidence, any one or more of the following:

- The parental rights of the parent to any other child have been terminated involuntarily.
- The parent abandoned, chronically abused, tortured, or sexually abused the child.
- The parent has been convicted of committing one or more of the following crimes against the child or another child of that parent:
 - Sexual assault under §§ 6-2-302 through 6-2-304
 - Sexual battery under § 6-2-313
 - Sexual abuse of a minor under §§ 6-2-314 through 6-2-317
- The parent is required to register as a sex offender pursuant to § 7-19-302, if the offense involved the child or another child of that parent. This shall not apply if the parent is only required to register for conviction under § 6-2-201.
- Other aggravating circumstances exist indicating that there is little likelihood that services to the family will result in successful reunification.
